Dear Members and Friends of the Clarendon Historical Society,

As you know, CHS has partnered with the Cobblestone Society and Museum in the past. They have the best museum in Orleans County! But, they want to make it even better and here is an easy way for you to help. Place your vote(s) to help the Cobblestone Museum become the site of the upcoming Creativity Incubator event. You can have one vote from each of your devices: if you have a smart phone, a laptop and a tablet you can vote three times! The competition is stiff -- please help them out!

Thank you!

Dear Friend of CHS ,

Please join us on Wednesday, April 18, 2017 at 7:00 PM when Matthew Ballard, Orleans County Historian, will present *Stories that Kill!, sharing the stories of several local criminals from bootleggers and thieves to killers and perhaps a few cases of mistaken wrongdoing. From the infamous murders of Alice Wilson and Emma Hunt to the embezzlement case of Albert S. Warner, Orleans County's history is filled with shocking instances of crime and wrongdoing!

Not only is Matt Ballard the Historian for Orleans County, he now resides in our own Clarendon! A local native, Matthew graduated from Albion High School in 2006. He enrolled at SUNY Brockport soon after. Focusing his studies in American History during the era of National Expansion and Reform (1815-1880), he has studied a broad range of local subjects including Cobblestone Masonry and Polish Immigration; completing his B.S. in History in 2010. In 2012, he earned his Master of Library Studies (M.L.S.) from the University at Buffalo where he studied academic librarianship and special collections management.

He serves as a member of the Preservation Committee with the Western New York Library Resources Council and is a board member of the Western New York Association of Historical Agencies. He also hosts the Albion Polonia website, which serves as a historical and genealogical resource for area researchers interested in the Polish communities of Albion and Medina.

Additionally, the Clarendon Historical Society has some exciting plans for 2018 and we hope to see you at all our programs! Here is what is in the planning stage:

May 16th: Aaron Delehanty — Restoring dioramas at RMSC and Chicago Field Museum (habitat diorama around Akeley's hyenas)

June 20th: Joanne French — Two Remarkable Women of Rochester: Matilda Harper (Harper Method) and Kate Gleason (Gleason Works)

July 18th: Dan Cody — The Influenza Epidemic of 1918

August 15th: Kevin Bedard — Growing Hops in New York State

September 19th: Peter Spence — Linden/ Clarendon Fault and other

geological formations in Clarendon

October 17th: To be determined.

All programs take place at the Clarendon Historical Society which is located at 16426 Fourth Section Road, Holley, NY at the intersection of Route 31A and Church Street in Clarendon. The presentations are free and open to the public, so bring a friend! Light refreshments will be served.

The Museum will be open from 5:00-

7:00 PM on the days we have programming (the 3rd Wednesday of the month beginning in April and going through October.)

Please feel free to share the attached posters. Remember, we are now accepting new and renewed memberships for 2018!

Dear CHS Friend,

Please join us on Wednesday, May 16, 2017 at 7:00 PM when Aaron Delehanty will speak of his work Restoring Dioramas at RMSC and Chicago Field Museum. His current work at the Rochester Museum and Science Center includes the 1838 in Rochester diorama. At the Field Museum in Chicago he built a life-sized habitat diorama using Carl Akeley's striped hyena's taxidermy. Carl Akeley, born in Clarendon, is credited with inventing the habitat diorama, showing animals accurately in natural positions in settings that replicate their natural environment. Mr. Delehanty says that in many ways his career has followed in Akeley's footsteps.

Aaron Delehanty is an artist and painter. He is the staff artist at RMSC where he builds dioramas, makes hyper realistic replications of artifacts, paints murals and creates all kinds of convincingly realistic landforms for the museums exhibits. Before coming to Rochester he held the same position at the Field Museum in Chicago. He also runs a small fabrication studio and exhibition space in Spencerport called Loud Cow. He is a graduate from the Master's program at the San Francisco Art Institute, the bachelor's program at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, as well as a history degree from Ohio State

Dear CHS Friend,

Please join us on Wednesday, June 20 at 7:00 PM when Joanne French will present Two Remarkable Women of Rochester: Matilda Harper and Kate Gleason.

Martha Matilda Harper, a domestic servant, developed a business model that would enable women to achieve financial independence. She opened the first public hair salon in the region and became one of the first businesspeople in America to start franchising, allowing franchisees to open salons under the Harper name. Each franchise was run by a woman.

Her own floor-length hair served as an effective marketing tool and appeared in many advertisements for her products. Many of her innovations, including the Harper Method, underlie the modern concept of the hair salon. In 2003, Harper was inducted into the National Women's Hall of Fame for her achievements in business

Kate Gleason, the first woman to attend The College of Engineering at Cornell, brought innovation and international sales to Gleason Works. Known for her engineering prowess, she developed a method of pouring concrete to build houses and oversaw the financing and construction of several factories. She was the first woman elected to full membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. In addition, she was an astute business woman, a humanitarian, philanthropist and suffragist. The Kate Gleason College of Engineering at RIT is named in her honor, and Kate Gleason Hall is an RIT residence hall.

Joanne French lives with her family in Spencerport. She enjoys being an ac-

Please join us on Wednesday, July 18 at 7:00 PM when Daniel D. Cody, M.A. will present The 1918 Influenza Epidemic.

In the fall of 1918 the Great War was coming to an end. However, another war was just starting. This was the war against Influenza, an epidemic that killed millions worldwide in just a few short months. Rochester was not immune from the ravages of influenza. This presentation explores how Rochester dealt with the epidemic they knew was coming and would be deadly.

Daniel D. Cody is employed as Collections Manager and Registrar for the Rochester Historical Society. He is also an adjunct lecturer of American History at the Finger Lakes Community College.

After Mr. Cody's presentation, Kristine Voos, CHES, a public health educator from Genesee Orleans Health Department, will be able to answer questions about current risks.

The program will take place at the Clarendon Historical Society which is located at 16426 Fourth Section Road, Holley, NY at the intersection of Route 31A and Church Street in Clarendon. The presentations are free and open to the public, so bring a friend! Light refreshments will be served.

INFLUENZA

Begins with Headache
Chilly Sensations and Fever
When uncomplicated it is not a serious disease and fever goes down in two or three days.

If fever persists or returns it probably means a most serious PNEUMONIA.

When first taken sick, patients must be put to bed in a room by themselves and must not get up for anything.

Send for a doctor right away.

We urgently advise patients to go to a hospital in the early stage.

Clarendon Historical Society invites you to join us on Wednesday, September 19 at 7:00 PM when Peter Spence will present How Our Land Was Formed.

Learn about the geology and the processes that shaped Clarendon, New York. Western New York's landscape has endured several millennia of landscape processes from ancient oceans, continental collision and glacial periods. These processes created the unique landscape of Clarendon that we enjoy today.

Peter Spence earned his Bachelors of Science in Water Resource Management and Master of Education in Secondary Science. He has been a Clarendon resident for three years. He is currently an Earth Science and Biology teacher at Byron Bergen Central Schools.
